The victory brought a sigh of relief to the huge and secretive Soviet delegation here, which has grown both larger and more nervous as its champion's play deteriorated in the last two weeks. The Soviet minister of sport, Viktor Yvonin, arrived here just in time to see Mr. Karpov lose his fifth game on Friday the 13th. Namibia Leaders Summoned

S.-W. Africa Talks End; Pretoria Reply Expected

PRETORIA, South Africa, Oct. 18 (AP) — Five Western foreign ministers ended three days of talks on South-West Africa (Namihia) tonight and left the country, leav-ing South African leaders to pond-er their proposals for the territory's independence.

[According to a New York Times report, the South African government pledged to decide by noon tomorrow whether to resume progress toward a UN-supervised transition to block regions and in siting to black majority rule in Namibia.] Earlier, South Africa summoned to Pretoria leaders of six South-West African political parties, raising speculation that South Africa and Western diplomats had cracked the key issue of independence and elections in the disputed territory. The South-West Africans were being brought here on a special government flight. The Westerners would not disclose details until South Africa gave its response to their proposals. U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said that the envoys presented several proposals.

Mr. Vance, the foreign ministers of West Germany, Canada, Britain and the deputy foreign minister of France met for four hours with the South Africans today in the longest session of the talks. Mr. Vance then left for Geneva; he will go to Moscow on Saturday for arms talks.

After the meeting, South African Prime Minister Pieter Botha said that the political leaders of South-West Africa — but not representa-tives of the black nationalist South-West Africa People's Organization — had been summoned.

Earlier Foreign Minister R. F.
Botha expressed doubt that the ministers and his government could agree on independence plans for South-West Africa despite reports that President Carter has invited Pringe Minister Botha to a summit conference in Washington on the issue.

"Yes, there will be further discussions." Foreign Minister Botha said, "but the problems have now reached such serious proportions that there is doubt whether we will be able to overcome them." Mr. Carter's invitation to the South African prime minister was reported by the Afrikaans-language newspaper Beeld and by French Deputy Foreign Minister Olivier and an inspiration for violence in the old Iberian Anarchist Federation.

The late dictator Franco crushed both organiza-tions after his victory in the 1936-39 civil war, but he failed to stamp out the deep anarchist roots. The labor confederation had been the biggest labor un-ion in southern Europe before the civil war, with more than a million members.

"A lot of people thought anarchism was dead." said Juan Gomez Casas, a confederation leader in Madrid. But, he said, membership has grown to

A different kind of anarchist has revived among landless peasants in Andalusia, the mostly poor southern region of huge estates, bull-breeding ranches and vineyards. This is the preacher anarchist, often self-taught, who delivers sermons claiming land and bread as communal property.

The current complaint is the turning of farmland into hunting preserves. Last month, angry Andalusians set fire to five estates owned by the aristocratic anarchists. "Few people defend us," said Juanito. 22, a Madrid libertarian. "They think of us as punks or bomb throwers."

Juanito does not advocate violence and says he believes firmly in the anarchist philosophy that government is unnecessary and evil and that, by education and goodwill, people can live in concord. With a group of young anarchists, he is trying to form neighborhood "libertarian centers" to propagate the anarchist credo: "No God, no state, no boss."

Several such centers, which fly the black anarchist flag, are already operating in Catalonia, where anarchism was strongest before the civil war and is strongest today.

Anarchists have no political program. They advocate getting rid of government and replacing it with workers' assemblies to settle differences. Those who are impatient with these tactics - and their numbers seem to be growing - have turned to violence.

la the past few months, paramilitary Civil Guards have arrested an undisclosed number of young anarchists in Catalonia and charged them with smuggling weapons and explosives from France.

Spain's violent anarchists bave been eclipsed by ETA, the Basque separatist underground, and the other urban guerrillas. But utopian and violent anarchism are as much a part of Spanish history as the civil war. A psychiatrist said, "After 40 years of repression and lies, the young believe in nothing. According to the Voice of Lebanon, the Syrian troops will be replaced by an equal number of soldiers from Jordan, Saudi Arabia and the United Arah Emirates.

The radio said that the Syrian withdrawal was to start tonight in the Beirut area, apparently to con-solidate the fragile cease-fire without further delay.

Paper Claims U.S. Vowed Equal Aid to Egypt, Israel

By Dial Torgerson

JERUSALEM, Oct. 18 — An is-raeli newspaper said yesterday that the Camp David agreements contain secret clauses that provide for military cooperation among Israel, Egypt and the United States.

The newspaper, Davar, citing what it said were British intellience sources, said that the United States had agreed to give Egypt economic assistance equal to what it gives Israel, between $2 billion and $3 billion a year.

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, Davar added, was to be given CIA protection against any attempt to assassinate him, particularly any at-tempt mounted in Libya. It said that CIA agents were already in Egypt in connection with this

Rhodesia Raids Guerrilla Bases In Mozambique

SALISBURY, Rhodesia, Oct. 18 (UPI) — Rhodesian troops today launched a wave of operations against Patriotie Front guerrilla bases in neighboring Mozambique, three days after insurgents shelled the eastern border city of Umtali.

A military communique said the raids are aimed at bases occupied by members of the Zimbabwe African National Liberation Army, the military arm of Robert Mugabe's faction of the Patriotic Front.

The announcement was made three days after ZANLA guerrillas, operating from hills within Rhodesia, attacked Umtali, about a mile west of the Mozambique border, with rockets, mortars and small arms. Five persons were wounded in the attack.

The latest incursions into Mozambique were the first that Rhodesia has admitted since late last month when it carried out four days of ground and air strikes against suspected guerrilla bases in Mozambique's Manica province.

The Rhodesians said they de-stroyed 25 ZANLA bases and seriously disrupted guerrilla lines of communications, but they admitted that up to 4,000 guerrillas who had been expected to be in the area had Rhodesian troops, of whom two were killed, inflicted considerable casualties. Sources said about 300 guerrillas may have been killed in the September raids.

It said that the United States had agreed to take a firm stand in support of the Egyptian-Israeli peace plan even in the event that Saudi Arabia refused to support it. It said that the secret clauses contain a promise to strengthen the Egyptian armed forces to the following extent:

• The United States is to supply large number of 120mm and a large minutes of Leonard and 155mm artillery pieces.

Soviet Scud and Frog missiles are to be replaced by U.S. Lance short-range missiles and Pershing medium-range missiles An air defense system based on Soviet missiles is to be replaced

• The Egyptian Navy is to be reinforced with new missile boats. The Egyptian Air Force is to get F-14, F-15 and F-16 aircraft, all of which are superior to what they

The rate of supply, Davar said, will be contingent upon how the Israeli-Egyptian peace talks proceed, with the more important items to be supplied in the later phases. Israel will get greater quantities of arms and weapons, it said, including all the F-15 and F-16 aircraft it requests and help in setting craft it requests and help in setting up arms-manufacturing industries. Davar said there is to be a significant change in the size of the Egyptian Army. Because of the new arms, it said, Mr. Sadat will be able to reduce the armed forces from 650,000 men — including reserves — to about 450,000. The regular army would be cut from 350,000 men to about 250,000 over the next two or three years. New Strategic Concept

Still quoting intelligence circles in London, Davar said that behind the Camp David agreement lies a new strategic concept under which Egypt would withdraw from the cycle of Arab wars and play a more important role in safeguarding Western interests in the oil regions

It said that a highway to be built from Egypt to Jordan through Israel is viewed in this connection. The highway, Davar said, will join a major road being constructed by the Saudi Arabians along the eastshore of the Gulf of Aqaba, and this will connect Egypt to Saudi Arabia, via Israel, for the movement of troops in the region.

President Carter called the Israe. li and Egyptian teams to the White House yesterday when Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan said the peace treaty negotiations had encountered "difficulties." Mr. Carter later said there had been "no crisis" requiring his intervention, that he merely wanted to re-view the progress of the talks, in their sixth day today.

Diplomatic sources said that the conference has dealt with a specific military item not included in the Camp David treaty framework — the future of the U.S. Sinai Field Mission, which keeps watch over the buffer zone between Egyptian and Israeli forces near the Suez

This denunciation of the Christian collaboration with Israel followed similar criticism by the French and U.S. governments, both of whieb ebarged Camille Chamoun, the Christian leader, with provoking the recent fighting.

The Western criticism had a stunning effect on the few thou-sand Christians living in the heavily battered Christian sector of Beirut. Many had been nurturing hopes that the Western powers would eventually come to their rescue, a development now ruled out because of the public accusations against their leader.

In addition to Syria and Lebanon, the seven-nation conference was also attended by Saudi Arabia, the Sudan, the United Arab Emirates, Kuwait and Qatar — the last two by virtue of their financial support of the ADF.

Carter Leaves Door Open On Future Neutron Arms

By Walter Pincus

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (WP) - President Carter today kept open, but only slightly, the option of someday deploying neutron weapons, as he made his long-delayed decision to begin production of a nuclear 8-inch artillery shell and I assess riselled warshed. and Lance missile warhead.

The weapons to be built will be the same nuclear fission type as now deployed in Europe, but they will be able to be converted to a neutron or enhanced-radiation effect with the insertion of a special omponent.

Mr. Carter also ordered that some, but not all, of the elements that make up the insertable neutron component be produced.

"He did the minimum to keep the [neutron] option open," a Carter aide said.

Neutron weapons are designed to destroy their targets primarily through radiation. The fission weapons now in Europe depend mostly on blast and heat for their killing effects.

Proponents of neutron weapons argue that they are the best weapon to combat the Soviet tank force in Western Europe because their radi-ation would kill crews inside the tanks but their reduced blast would not destroy towns adjacent to the battlefield.

Opponents argue that, because the neutron weapons caused less physical damage, they would be more likely to be used and thus lower the nuclear threshold.

When the proposed U.S. produc tion of neutron weapons became known in June, 1977, it set off an international debate.

On April 7, after controversy on the new weapons grew, Mr. Carter announced that he was deferring immediate production of neutron versions but would go ahead with modernization of the nuclear artillery shells and the Lance missile.

Everything depends on whether China has the capacity to export Japan huge amounts of oil, in the Japanese view, and, in turn, c whether the Japanese oil refinir's industry will prove willing to accept the oil.

Paying in Oil

Under the long-term trade agreement, China plans to pay mainly to oil for construction with Japanes aid of a succession of huge plant including two steel plants that Ch na has recently requested. Sweden Premier Selects All-Liberal Government

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 18 (API -Premier Ola Ullsten today gave Sweden its first all-Liberal Cabinet in 46 years, with women taking 6 of the 19 portfolios.

The Liberal minority govern ment, which has only 39 of the 349 seats in parliament, succeeds the outgoing Cabinet of the former centrist premier, Thorbjorn Falld-

Mr. Ulisten, who took over the leadership of the Liberal Party this year, said in his inauguration speech that one of the toughest challenges facing the oew government is the nuclear issue, which brought down the three-party coalition government after only two years in power.
This government intends to pursue an energy policy that can gain widespread support in this house and among the Swedish people," Mr. Ullsten said.

Mr. Ullsten, 37, a career politician since the late 1950s, obviously faced problems in putting together a government, which is assured to stand only for the next eleven months. General elections are set for next September.

Strength Maintained

To avoid weakening his party's position in the Riksdag, Mr. Ullsten picked only three members of parliament for new Cabine! seats. He also kept five members of the outgoing Cahinet in their posts. Mr. Ullsten kept Ingemar Mun-debo as budget minister but also awarded him the ecocomy post. Sven Romanus, who describes him-self as an independent liberal, stays on as minister of justice. Also remaining in their offices are the minister of culture, Jan-Erik Wikstrom; the minister of labor, Rolf Wirthen, and the minister of hous-ing, Birgit Friggebo.

Realizing the difficulties of leading a minority government, Mr. Ullsten said: "Government proposals can only be carried through if they obtain the support of a parlia-mentary majority, and we shall endeavour to proceed, step by step, to translate these ideas from statutory provisions to practical reality."

Welfare Deficiencies

Acknowledging "great deficien-cies" in the Swedish welfare society, Mr. Ullsten said that there is room for much improvement in the social, educational and economic

Thus, he said, "the Social Security amendments of 1977 did oot solve all of the financial prob-

In particular, he said, resolution of two major problem areas was

Thus, he predicted, "Taxpayers must become accustomed to paying higher taxes for Social Security benefits unless those benefits are reduced below current levels."
"It is just not possible," he said.

"to pay for the current Social Security program with the taxes oow being collected."

Mr. Robertson said that the failure of the public to understand the workings of the program — the tenuous relationship between the taxes paid and the benefits received, for example - would make the job of modifying the system over the years very difficult.

Moreover, he said, the possibility of sustained high levels of inflation made it likely that private pensions and private savings will play an in-creasingly smaller role in providing economic security, and the Social Security benefits must increase as a result, further adding to long-range

Denmark, Sweden and Norway.

These countries provide among the most extensive welfare benefits and have expanded their welfare systems the most rapidly since the mid-1960s.

Welfare services, such as health care and sick pay, pensions, family allowances, rent and house-owning subsidies, free tuition and student stinends, which are available to virtually all citizens, are the largest items in the hudgets of the six

Such large expenditures for welfare programs are no longer practi-cal, Mr. Geiger maintained, adding that they are triggering higher taxes and increased government borrowing, two factors that contribute to high rates of inflation. In addition. "rising taxes are pushing produc-tion costs up to levels that inhihit private investment and competitiveness," he wrote,

Reduced competition is forcing each of the six countries' govern-ments to impose new barriers against imports and to provide large subsidies to help their private enterprises.

Aside from this major economic shift, increased subsidies are affecting employment policies, wages and employee attitudes. A growing number of workers no looger see the advantages of income carned for work when income can be obtained from the national welfare system, the report said. A Presidential President

To judge by Jimmy Carter's performance in dealing with the 95th Congress, his political education is proceeding apace. He came to Washington rather like an emissary — in his own mind perhaps an emissary of all the people — to a strange foreign capital on whose institutions and mores he intended to impose his own superior design. He found that the establishment was fragmented and parochial, resistant to designs not of its own hand, and more than a little disrespectful of interlopers who did not grant easy legitimacy to traditional political styles.

Mr. Carter has had the wit, however, to diagnose his own shortcomings, of which the largest was the failure to convince either his partners or adversaries in government that he accepted the need to employ the full powers of his office. No less important, he was able to turn events to his own advantage. The upshot is the hard-won respect in which he is basking now that the 95th Congress has gone home. He is widely perceived to a "presidential" president at last.

Now, domestic performance — especially, bargaining with Congress - is the chief measure by which Washington, if not the country at large, sizes a president. This is a particularly appropriate standard to apply to President Carter, who came to the White House at a relatively tranquil international moment. determined to apply himself first at home.

Mr. Carter nonetheless was quick to accept a number of high-risk foreign-policy challenges. In the Panama Canal Treaties, the Mideast arms vote and the Turkish arms embargo, he rejected counsels of political caution and acted according to what he (and we) felt were necessary international lights. He won on each of those issues, the demonstration of purpose and success more than compensating for the bruises. And from the highest-risk foreign venture of all, Camp David, he has emergered with a stunning personal triumph that enhanced his stature precisely as he turned back to his domestic program as the 95th Congress was counting to receive the considerable political benefits flowing from the public mood associated with Proposition 13 - the desire to curb public spending, the growth of government and inflation. He harnessed that mood to sustain key vetoes and cut other measures

But Mr. Carter has done more than flow with the tide. In his approach to his own staff, the press and public, as well as the legislature, he has adopted many of the tactics by which presidents traditionally seek to blend their individual vision of government with the cluttered collective vision of the Congress. He has also stopped demanding that Congress overhaul just about every major social program simultaneously. It is not, however, that he has caved in entirely to the "old" politics. What ostensibly savvy politician would, for instance, have vetoed a public works bill or undertaken a serious civilservice reform? It was in his own way that he finally came to terms with the 95th Congress. That augurs well, we might add, for his relationship with the 96th.

From the point of view of the national interest, the results in legislation were more than good. Arguably, the country has a better grip - if not yet a satisfactory grip - on those of its problems amenable to the legislative process that it did a few years ago.

From the point of view of the president, the results may have been even better. Mr. Carter fought effectively enough, and carried enough of his program, to put down the earlier widespread questioning of his presidential "competence." The political benefits to himself and his party are obvious. But he did more: His strong finish makes it possible, for the first time at least since Lyndon Johnson's political heyday, to imagine that the U.S. system can enjoy the crucial element of a strong president. Heaven knows that's not all the U.S. system needs. It needs a more focused Congress, a more responsible party system... one could go on. President Carter, though, is on the way to making his own contribution. It could be substantial.

After standing of the tangles of Eastmany years of self-doubt and intellectual and spiritual retreat, they are beginning to defend their ideals and carry them into the world with a new confidence.

The election of a Polish pope is only the latest and most dramatic symbol of this change. It asserts the universality of the Church of Rome. It denies the right of the political state to dictate the spiritual life of the individual, and it insists on speaking to all the peoples of the world, not as isolated communities, but as members of the human family.

Pope John II put before the Roman Catholic Church a fundamental question that confronts all institutions in all parts of the world, material as well as spiritual. Are they relevant to the problems of the rising generation and the coming age? Are they speaking in ancient tongues to a narrow and dwindling congregation, or looking beyond the present struggles to different, wider and more hopeful world? A generation or so ago it was the Western nations and their institutions that were defending the status quo while the Communist nations were demanding change. But now all this is quite different.

There is still a clash in the West between the isolationists and protectionists on the ooe hand and the internationalists with their multinational corporations and their bopes of a world economy on the Other. But the main thing is that the free nations and their institutions are adjusting, even if slowly, to the changes of the modern world faster than anybody else.

It is not Moscow or Peking but Washington that is trying to bring about a reconciliation between the Arabs and the Israelis in the Middle East, or between the blacks and whites in sub-Sahara Africa.

It is not Moscow or Peking but Washington, London, Paris, Bonn and the other Western capitals that are worrying about the controls of population, nuclear weapons and nuclear wastes, industrial pollution. and international anarchy on the airways of the world. The West doesn't quite know what to do about all this, but at least it has a sense of longing for new directions. It is yearning for a different future world and the decision in Rome to choose a Polish pope — the first onn-Italian in 455 years — illustrates the point.

The interpretation in Washington of the selection of the Polish Cardinal Karol Wojtyla as pope is · He appealed to the electors in Rome in three different ways. The curia was divided between two Italian candidates but couldn't decide between them.

 Karol Wojtyla appealed to the conservatives because he is n tough anti-Communist, who was feared by the Communist regime in Warsaw even more than Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski.

 Second, he appealed to the liberal elements in the Curia because he is a social liberal. Not on such things as abortion, but on other social issues — personal justice, wages, work rules, profits, the role of people in modern industrial society, and the place of the church as a vital personal concern in a secular state

• Third, he appealed to all the electors in Rome because of his combination of intellectual and human qualities - he was, for example, one of those who Pope Paul VI asked to speak to all of the different cardinals at the Vatican-2 conference on the subject of theology, where he made a significant

Io short, the new Pope can speak ence of government leaders from not only in the languages of East-black Africa and the Arab world

Even so, there is a kind of pulling together in the free world —a real-ization that there is a new kind of warfare of ideas between the Western and the Communist nations and a new willingness in the West to face the competition between Western democracy and Eastern Communism as alternative ways of dealing with the inevitable struggles and changes of the last quarter of the century.

All this is emerging in vague and subtle ways, but when the Church of Rome goes to Poland for a pope, forgetting over 400 years of tradi-tion, it is clear that something new or maybe something very old is happening, and that the West is be-ginning to regain a sense of confi-

Is OPEC going to be so preoccupied with its own internal financial management that it bas less time to help its poorer brethren scattered around the southern hem-

The answer to these questions is

But the questions raise a bigger question — why has no Third World country apart from Cuba and Tanzania raised any dust? OPEC's commitment to No. I, although now more pronounced, is no new thing. It is five years since oil prices were quadrupled. In each of those years, the Third World has had to shell out to OPEC an extra

$11 billion it doesn't have. Much of the reason for the pas-sivity is Third World's refleted bostility to the West. The fact that the West has been hurt by OPEC puts OPEC on the side of the angels. It is also because of some adroit foot-work carried on by OPEC spokes-men. One of them is Ibrahim shihata, the shrewd Egyptian direc-tor general of the OPEC special fund. His explanation has a certain conviction: OPEC countries occu-py the top six ranks among aid doors. Quatar gives away 15 per-cent of its GNP, the United Arab Republic, 12 percent and Saudi Republic, 12 percent and Saudi Arabia, over 7 percent. Compare this, he says, with a Western aver-age of 31 percent and a U.S. budget of 22 percent.

But when asked what all this means, when set against the added annual burden of $11 billion which developing countries have had to fork out for their oil since 1973, be replied: "Did the West compensate the Third World when the price of food grain went up nearly as much as oil prices in 1974 and 1975? Does the Third World get compensated for the increasing prices of its manufactured imports from the West? There is no case for seeking to compensate buyers for every significant price rise." He concludes by suggesting that OPEC may now be giving as much as it takes since oil prices in real terms have been falling the last couple of years. Not only have OPEC spokesmen built up an apparently convincing intellectual case, they have been adept at defusing potentially difficult situations. In March of last year, the first joint summit confer-

ONDON — OPEC is going nearly broke up before it began beinto debt. New figures re- cause the Africans felt that they

For all this, it is time the Third World saw through OPEC. OPEC on balance has not been such a good friend.

Mr. Shihata's claim that OPEC is giving as moch as it takes is some way from the truth. Even if one counts in World Bank bonds contributions to the IMF oil facility, none of which are aid in the tradinonal sense, OPEC is still only pay-ing out $8 billion a year — $3 billion short of its new profits. Neither should too much attention be given to his argument about West-ern food or manufacturers' prices. Food prices stayed high only for two years and then came down to more moderate levels. Moreover, unlike oil, there is no developing country that cannot produce its own food if it decides to give agriculture the priority it deserves. Al-though it is true that the price of manufactured imports has gove op the last three years, it has been more than compensated for by the rise in price of traditional Third World exports.

On the political front, too, OPEC has been found wanting. It was OPEC that led the Third World and its battering rams up to Henry Kissinger's door in 1975 only to draw back when the door began to open. OPEC had convinced Kiss-inger, and with him the rest of the West, that it bad to negotiate a new relationship with the Third World. There had to be more aid, a special fund to support commodity prices, debt relief and reform of the voting structure in the international finan cial institutions. OPEC told the West that progress on the North-South dialogue was directly linked to oil prices. For a year or more the West was on the run but then suddenly the pressure was off. During the big meeting in Paris in June last year. OPEC had decided that oil prices were too important to be traded off against Third World considerations.

No argument can disguise the reality that OPEC's performance has fallen far short of its brothery rhetoric. In short, it has left much of the Third World in the lurch. The Third World has had to go out to Western Banks and borrow money at high rates of interest to bridge its balance of payments gaps. The hanks which have lent them these vast sums are overstretched and are likely to lend less from now on. Of course, OPEC is only one element in the Third World's troubles. hut it is an important one. It is time OPEC began to put its money

For SALT Treaty By William Beech

MOSCOW, Oct. 18—The latest U.S. SALT negotiators have set they will accept the Soviet rain tion proposal closely resembles a limitation on the weapon only for plan the Russians rejected shortly after the Carter administration came to office, diplomatic sources

One of the two plans which Secretary of State Cyrus Vance brought here at the behest of the new president in March of last year would have left the Soviet Backfire bomber and the U.S. Cruise missile unconstrained, wrapping up less controversial issues in a modest SALT treaty.

The new Soviet position, recently advanced in Washington by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, dropped Soviet insistence on range limitanous on the U.S. air-launched Cruise missile and urged acceptance of its contention that the Backfire bomber was neither de-signed for nor had the capability for attacks against the United States and thus should escape limitations in the new pact.

New Effort

Arguments over these and related issues will confront Mr. Vance and Mr. Gromyko this weekend when they make yet another effort to compromise differences in the interests of both a new treaty, and quite possibly, a warmer chapter in the relations between the two

If they are successful, an agree ment in principle will be achieved that can be wrapped up at a sum-mit in early December between Presidents Carter and Leonid Bre-

If they fail, and some U.S. offi-cials say the odds are 50-50, then further negotiations will proceed with an aim of completing a draft treaty early next year.

To the layman, it might seem that both sides have become tangled in arguments about minute points that have very little to do with the balance of power, but that would miss the point. Take, for instance, the debate over Cruise missiles. Since from the first the U.S. conceded that air-launched Cruise missiles were intended for use against targets in the Soviet Union, it was never a question of whether they should be cov-ered by treaty limitations, but how. Limits

By removing their insistence on a 1,550-mile range limit on the air-launched version of the very accurate, pilotless weapon, the Russians have overcome the major objection of the U.S. Defense Department that the range was inadequate to penetrate Soviet air defenses and cover all its principal targets.

But the Russians have coupled this negotiating generosity with insistence that throughout the seven-year life of the treaty, ground-and-sea launched Cruise missiles could have a range no greater than 370

If the United States accepted that proposition, it would cause a major rift in the Atlantic alliance. For West Germany, Britain, France and other NATO nations say they oced something to counter the hundreds of medium-range SS-20 mis-siles and Backfire bombers being deployed in positions where they could quickly devastate airlields, shipyards, arms depots and other critical military targets throughout

They look to the Cruise missile as potentially a very effective answer to the growing Soviet threat. But weapons with less than 1,000mile range would be totally inadequate to pose a meaningful counterthreat, they say.

Erased

The Carter administration is in the throes of a government-wide debate on what weapon to develop for that mission. It has already concluded that the nuclear-armed tactical bombers in Europe are no longer viable — they could be de-stroyed on the ground at the outset of war. As one top official confided recently: "Every NATO airfield in Europe would be destroyed within 10 minutes by the SS-20."

The two principal contenders for that mission today are a mobile, ground-launched Cruise missile or a mobile medium-range ballistic missile. Congress recently modified the administrations defense budget to direct work on a mobile ballistic missile. There has even been some talk of removing one of the three stages from the Minuteman ICBM and having it serve as a European-based mobile missile.

But a ballistic missile in Europe with such range would be regarded by the Soviets as provocative, in that it could make a disarming first strike and couldn't be defensed. Cruise missiles, being slower, couldn't be shot down, except with difficulty. Being a lot cheaper, how-ever, thousands of Cruise missiles could be bought and spread

Partly to keep this option open, they will accept the Soviet rand limitation on the weapon only id the two-to-three year period of it protocol to the treaty, not through 1985. That would permit a decision to build and deploy the weapon it Europe in the early 1980s.

Fussy

Thus, rather than an issue the only fussy negotiators chose to ni only fussy negotiators cause to mi pick about, the way the Cruise mit sile question is resolved could have major impact on the future of the NATO alliance and the balance (

power in Europe.
France thinks so much of the pa tential of the weapon, and so little of U.S. resolve in SALT, that it be informed Washington it is moving shead independently to design an build its own Cruise missile. Another Cruise missile issue concern to NATO is whether wear onsern to NATO is whether wearons with nuclear warheads only a constrained. Since SALT is an posed to deal only with strateg nuclear weapons, the United Statiargues that Cruise missiles withing explosive warheads not be inted. The system is of such purpositional to the system is could be used. accuracy that it could be used. knock out key bridges, railros hubs and airfields. But the Ru sians say that since all Cruise mi siles look alike, they have to considered nuclear, and co

Finally, how to count the lon-range bombers carrying ai, launched Cruise weapons? Was ington has long since agreed the any bomber armed with the west on will count as it if were a sing multiple warbead ICBM under if ceiling for such weapons.

Role of B-52s The B-52 bomber can carry abo
20 Cruise missiles. But the United III

States has been studying the pos-bility of using a wide-bodied is such as the 747, which could carrill about 60 missiles.

The Russians contend that mul-ples of 20 are okay, but shon count for more. A plane whith i missiles should take the place three multiple warhead ICBM they say. The United States says doesn't plan to hring in bigger m sile planes until toward the end the treaty period and would pref to be allowed to average the number of Cruise missiles among smaller and larger carriers, wi each 35 missiles counting as if the were one ICBM.

The Backfire bomber is an iss as important for its political impa on ratifying the SALT-2 treaty the Senate as on strategic ground in a very sensitive undertaking it Russians produced a flight profi of the plane insisting its range is t greater than 2,300 miles. All et ments of the U.S. intelligence con. munity are agreed the unrefude range is at least 5,000 miles, with t much payload as both bombers, t Bear and the Bison, which the Ru sians argee are strategic.

The Russians say the Backfire designed for use in the Chinese ar European theaters, as well as medium-range naval strike aircra. They accuse the United States (()) making such a hig issue in orde deviously, to protect the interests the line China and West Germany.

Soviet Protest

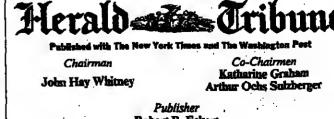

The Russians, however, hav, protested the notion by the Unite States that it has the right unde the new treaty to deploy a missi shell game, sbuttling 200-3 ICBMs randomly among thot sands of extra silo-like holes. Th would be designed to protect pa of the Minnteman missile for against the increasingly accurat and numerous new Soviet wa

Other options it clude ICBMs aboard wide-bodie jets, or on ground launch vehicle that could move out of danger o warning of an impending attack, 0 new missiles in small submarine deployed along the U.S. continer

The United States takes the position that since the shell game is no specifically prohibited by the trea ty, so long as a scheme could be developed to permit verification that it was not deploying more missile launchers than allowed, it has:

That is what renders this eckend's negotiations so important a test for both sides.

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho, Oct. 18 (UPI) - Leaking radioactive gas forced evacuation of 50 workers at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory's chemical processing plant last night. Laboratory spokesman Dick Blackledge said that only a small amount of gas leaked out and that persons were exposed to

The reprocessing plant that West Germany promised to help Brazil build, moreover, appears to be a far less immediate worry concerning proliferation than was originally feared.

Construction is not expected to start until 1985. Officials also say the Brazilian plant will be of laboratory size, designed not to produce any significant amounts of plutonium, which can be used in ouclear weapons, but rather to let Brazilian scientists begin learning reprocessing technology.

The key to West German aid m
belping Brazil build both enrichment and reprocessing plants ap-pears to lie in Brazil's willingness to move ahead with purchase of eight nuclear-power reactors that were scheduled under the original agree-ment to be completed by 1990. For Bonn, the advanced technology was only the sweetener to land a buge

But three years after the an-nouncement of the West German-Brazilian agreement, only two of the eight reactors are under cootract. Construction work on them is already two years behind schedule, and no date has been set for signing any additional contracts.

Since the price of the reactors is calculated in Deutsche marks, cost of the total package has almost doubled since 1975 to an estimated $12 billion.

France Negotiating Arms Sales to China

By Flora Lewis

PARIS, Oct. 18 (NYT) - France is negotiating a deal with Peking to sell an arms package worth $350 million, including 15,000 anti-tank and anti-air missiles, some helicopters and a licensing arrangement under which the Chinese could produce more missiles, according to French and Chinese sources. The cootract is expected to be completed and signed this year.

Officially, the French policy on weapons sales to China is that only defensive arms can be delivered. oot those with offensive capabili-ties. The French government also says that it is not interested in selfing small quantities of equipment which can be copied, or in licensing deals without substantial orders for manufacture in France.

Cocom, the allied coordinating agency for sales to Communist countries, has not taken a posidon on military goods for China, but there bave been hints in Paris that France does not intend to subordinate its decisions to the agency's stand. Unofficial French sources are convinced that the Chinese will test out the "defense equipment only" policy gradually, increasing the level of their purchase requests as France gets involved in their Official sources have said that there is oo effort to coordinate French arms sales to China with those of other European countries, such as Britain, West Germany and Italy, where the Chinese have also shown interest in acquiring military equipment. Information is exchanged, officials said, but competidoo is the rule.

Discreet Approval

The French believe that the United States is taking a stand of discreet approval of these sales, and those Japan may make, although it is oot itself entering the competitioo because of relations with Taiwan and possible domestic political rows over that issue. Some of the sales under discussion would be hard to define as strictly defensive, such as Britain's sale of Rolls-Royce jet engines for China's MiG-21s, and efforts to sell its vertical takeoff and landing Harrier planes. The Chinese were said to be especially interested in the Harrier

However, U.S. officials at the North Atlantic Treaty Organization have expressed concern about possible French technical assistance for the Chinese space effort. The Chinese have shown interest in French rocket propulsion technology, gyroscopes and computers for guided missiles. According to the sources, there have been talks about the Chinese purchase of the French Iris-60 space computer.

One firm French policy oo sales to China, however, is to demand safeguards against competition from "made-in-China" versions of French arms in Third World markets - in Africa, the Middle East and Lann America. The French consider their position in these areas particularly good because they are considered somewhat independent of the superpowers. China could make the same claim if it wanted to get into the weapons export business.

The Chinese are determined to launch a crash program to modern-ize their armed forces to meet what

Wide Variety

The French sources said that the Chinese obtained a wide variety of Soviet equipment for study from the Vietnamese, before the recent dispote broke out between Hanoi and Peking. The Chinese were also said to have received a few Soviet MiGs, including the MiG-23, from Egypt, for the same purpose.
On the basis of these studies, the Chinese decided oo anti-tank and anti-air missile purchases. They have chosen the French Milan, a portable and-tank missile which Lebanese Christians said the Syrians were using against them in Beirut, and the armor-mounted HOT anti-tank missile. Io the anti-air category, the Chinese plan to buy the French Crotale.

They were interested in the Ro-land anti-air missile, but Boeing has bought a license and is to prothey consider the massive Soviet duce several thousand of them for convendonal arms threat. However, the U.S. Army. Washington let the French know that, as a major customer, it would oot like China being able to acquire the same weapon that it is ouving, so Peking was told that it would have to take the Crotale, the sources said.

The Russians have warned the French against "arming China for war," hut officials said there has been no direct Soviet intervention in connection with the deals. But the French are acutely aware of

to a poiot which Moscow might consider too far. Therefore, Paris has not as yet been receptive to Chinese inquiries about the purchase of sophisticated Mirage F-1 and Mirage 2000 planes, not easily qualified as pure-

possible Soviet reactions if they go ly defensive.

Civilian goods are also implicitly involved in the Chinese arms purchase plans. These would include chase plans. These would include electronic components which China is discussing with Japan, and widebodied, medium-range Airhus transport planes.

High-Level Purge Is Reported in China

By Linda Mathews

HONG KONG, Oct. 18 — A general housecleaning in the highest ranks of the Chinese Communist Party has already swept aside three powerful provincial leaders and may have shaken up China's military command as well.

Informed diplomatic sources in Peking said yesterday that Chen Hsi-lien, a key Communist military strategist for oearly 50 years, has been dismissed as commander of the Peking Military Region and will sooo be expelled from the 23man Politburo that governs China. Mr. Chen's dismissal, coming immediately after the ouster of party chiefs in Peking, Liaoning and In-ner Mongolia, apparently stems from a campaign to eradicate highlevel resistance to the pragmatic, profit-oriented policies of the Com-munist party vice chairman, Teng Hsiao-ping, the guiding force behind China's current moderniza-

An element of revenge may also be involved. Both Mr. Chen and Wu Teh, who lost his job as mayor of Peking last week, helped engi-oeer Mr. Teng's own political downfall in April, 1976, and eliminated any chance he ever had to succeed Mao Tse-rung as chairman of the Communist Party.

Mr. Teng was blamed by Mr. Chen and Mr. Wu for a violent demonstratioo in Peking's Tienanmen Square. They led the public denunciations of Mr. Teng and re-portedly tried to block his return to power after Mao's death in Septem-ber, 1976, Perhaps because of such activities, Mr. Teng was not rehabilitated until mid-1977 and was shut out of the post-Mao succes-

Among China-watchers, it had been widely assumed that Mr. Teng would eventually move against his old antagonists. The fact that Mr. Wu and Mr. Chen managed to cling to their offices so long indicates that they had powerful supporters within the leadership, prob-ably Chairman Hua Kuo-feng and Vice Chairman Yeh Chien-ying. both of whom outrank Mr. Teng.

Now that Mr. Teng apparently has finally had his way, questions are bound to be raised about Mr. Hua's hold on the reins of power, If Mr Hua, who serves as premier as well as party chairman, could oot save two of his allies on the Politburo, then that may mean that the real authority io China rests with Mr. Teng. It is possible, of course, that

PARIS. Oct. 18 (IHT) — The idea of Mikhail Baryshnikov in a new ballet based oo a story by the inexhaustible Pushkio was enough to push expectations to a fever pitch at last night's official openiog of the 16th Paris Ioterna-tional Dance Festival at the Theatre des Champs-Elysees.

As things turned out, the letdown was correspondingly great, for despite heroic efforts from the magnificent Russian dancer and worthy efforts from his colleagues, Roland Petit's "The Queen of Spades" collapsed like a bouse of cards, undermined by unsuitable

most unrelieved triteness The Pushkin novelette, and the romantic opera that Tehaikovsky made of it, tell of an old Russian countess, called the "Queen of Spades" because of her addiction to gambling as a young beauty in Paris. She supposedly possesses a secret of three cards infallible for wioning at faro. This obsesses a moody young officer, Herman, who frightens the old woman to death trying to learn her secret. Her ghost gives the secret to the by-now demented Herman, who plays the cards. But the final one is not a winner after all, but the queen of spades - revenge from beyond the

The relevance of this to last oight's proceedings is that Petit's sive body would seem to have been ballet was "directly inspired" by Pushkin, not Tehaikovsky, and it cape with the best of them, and he seems - according to a recent interview - that he originally intended to use an unknown Prokofiev score that turned out to be unavail-

So instead he used music from Tchaikovsky's operatie score, so rich in romantic associations but utterly at odds with Pushkin. This was served up in an "opera without words" orchestration — famous arias with instruments taking the vocal part — a denatured product crude oo its owo terms and, io providing a shaky musical floor to dance on a cruel joke on one of the greatest of ballet composers.

On paper, Petit's scenario looked effective - six scenes lasting a little more than an hour, reducing the story to its essentials, with some potentially effective balletic devices sessive behavior. Baryshnikov's expressive face and infinitely respontossed off a succession of leaps, turns and character episodes with almost casual brilliance. But what he was given to do was the balletic equivalent of rhetoric rather than expressiveness. With Lisa reduced from her Tchaikovskian status, the old countess became the other central character. She was effectively danced by Jacqueline Rayet, who sought to convey great age with movements of arthritic angularity. She was given some quite graceful things to do as she reminisced about her youth in Paris, and a realistically effective death scene that included being lifted by the neck. Evelyne Desutter was a pale but fluid Lisa, touching in her two pas de deux with the calculating Herman.

The capacity audieoce had cheers for Baryshnikov and the other dancers, but greeted Petit with a chorus of boos when he joined the curtain calls.

Petit's "Theme and Variations," an "abstract" ballet for 10 dancers set to parts of Tchaikovsky's Trio in A minor, served as a curtain-raiser to fill out the evening, but little more. The plain-colored tights against a dark curtain focused the attention oo the dancing, which was banal and repetitious - all

Chrysler Buys Mitsubishi Engines

Chrysler has agreed in buy one million four-cylinder auto engines from its 50-percent-owned Mitsu-bishi Motors, of Japan, over five years starting with the 1981 model-year. Officials decline to specify the dollar value of the agreement but auto analysts estimate it at some $500 million. The order would spare Chrysler the expense of expanding its own produc-tion plants, conserving badly occded cash while giving it enough engines to stock its "down-sized" fleet in the 1980's. Still unclear is bow Chrysler plans to deal with Volkswagen, which has a contract to sup-ply Chrysler through 1981 with up to 300,000 fourcylinder engines a year. Chrysler also is gearing up its Trenton, Mich., plant to produce four-cylinder engines itself at the rate of 400,000 units a year starting in the 1981 model year and 800,000 a year there-rent 10.5 MBD. What makes the problem so touchy is that there is nothing dramatic the Saudis really can do about it. As U.S. officials argued to King Khaled last month, any siz-able increase in oil prices anytime soon could burt major Western economies, send the dollar plung-ing further and ultimately, could dampen oil demand even more.

The Saudis could cut imports, but that would mean curtailing new industrial development programs - a step they are reluctant to take

They also could step up their own oil output, either by stepping up OPEC's overall production lev els or by garnering a larger share of the cartel's allocation.

Analysts say the difficulties now being faced by the Saudis could have broad implications for other Arab nations, and for the effectiveness of the oil-producing cartel as a whole. In the past, the Saudis have played the swing man in OPEC, trimming production levels to bail other producers out of financial squeezes without raising overall prices. That now seems [inished.

Price Rise Expected

Haw well the Saudis will be able to cope with the squeeze may de-pend on several factors, the most important of which is whether the world oil market firms up in the next few months or continues to languish. For now, most analysts believe the cash-flow squeeze the Saudis are suffering will be tempo-rary, and that the budget-paring done so far will tide them through to a reversal early in 1979.

Meanwhile, however, the cashflow problem is providing new evidence that, in the long run, some of the analysis may have been correct in predicting that the OPEC cartel someday would begin to show signs of cracking. While the present diffi-culty is far from definitive, economists point out that the cash squeeze finally is forcing the Saudis to consider boosting production levels — a move that should thwart any major rise in prices.

U.S. Seeks Curb On Taiwan TVs

TAIPEI, Oct. 18 (AP-DJ) — Despite a growing dispute over colortelevision exports, Taiwan has reached a preliminary agreement to reduce tariffs on about 300 U.S. products in return for similar U.S. cutbacks on about 1,000 of Taiwan's export items, trade offi-

But officials here said the United States wants to roll back Taiwan's color-TV shipments more than 50 percent from the expected 1978 level of 650,000 units to about 280,000 sets a year until mid-1980. The 280,000 figure is the rough annual average of Taiwan's color-TV exports to the U.S. market in the 1975-77 period, or before conclusion of the orderly marketing agreement restricting Japan's color-TV exports to the United States.

Taiwanese officials argue that to use the average shipments of the three previous years as a base is un-fair and the reduction would seriously hamper Taiwan's color-TV industry. For the time being, both sides have temporarily agreed to limit Taiwan's exports of color sets in the fourth quarter of this year to

Wall St. Prices Fall; Fed Raises Key Rate

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 (Reuters) - New York Stock Exchange prices today retreated over a broad front for the third consecutive sessioo on worries about rising inter-est rates, inflation and the falling dollar. Trading was active.

In the government securities market, the Federal Reserve twice dramed banking reserves, a near certain signal it is again tightening credit the day after the policy-set-ting Open Market Committee met, analysts said.

They said the Fed has moved its target on federal funds, overnight reserves banks lend one another and a base for all other interest rates, a notch higher than its previ-ous 8% percent goal, although the new level is not yet clear. The Fed allowed funds to trade around 8 15/16 percent without intervening, then drained reserves with over-night repurchase pacts with funds at 8 13/16 percent and again later at 8% percent.

On the NYSE, the Dow Jones industrial average lost 6.67 to 859.67 and declining issues outnumbered advances 1,250-to-277. Volume cased to 32.94 million shares from 37.87 million yesterday.

Analysts, noting the rise in bous-ing starts reported during session, said continuing strength in con-struction and other indications of steady economie growth could make it more difficult for the Fed to slow mocey-supply growth and credit demand.

On a technical level, analysts said rising interest rates and record levels of margin debt coupled with falling stock prices could prompt margin traders, those buying oo credit, to pare margin positions and add to the selling.
Reliance Group was most active and gained in to 34%. Ramada Inns, second most active, lost % to 10½. Active Bally Manufacturing fell 1½ to 42% and Caesar's World lost 1% to 38. Company directors proposed a 3-for-2 stock split and offerings of $25 million of common stock and another $25 million of debentures.

American Telephone lost 1/2 to American Telephone lost 1/2 to 62% in active trading. Seabord World Airlines jumped 3% to 15 in heavy trading. Western Air Lines fell % to 9% and Pan American dropped % to 7½, both in active trading. Eastman Kodak, also active, picked up % to 62%. The company forecast record 1978 sales and earnings.

Du Pont lost % to 130% despite a sharp rise in third-quarter earnings and its prediction of record net profit for the year. Monsanto fell 1/2 to 56% and Dow Chemical dropped ¼ to 27¼.

Olinkraft added 31/2 to 621/2. Yes today, Johns-Manville began a competing bid for up to 4.4 million shares at $65 each Smithkline added 1% to 90% and Pfizer climbed % to 3414. On the Americao Stock Exchange, prices fell sharply in active trading. The market-value in-dex lost 2.96 to 160.59 and the average price per share lost 24 cents. U.S. Income Up Moderate 0.5%

For September WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (UPI)

— U.S. personal income rose a moderate 0.5 percent, seasonally adjusted, last month, matching August's gain, the Commerce De-

The report could cause concern among administration economists who have been counting on robust consumer spending this autum to keep economic expansion on target. The 0.5-percent increases in each of the last two months were below the 1.4-percent rise in July and the 0.8-percent gains in both June and

fay. The September and August rises were the smallest since the 0.4-percent increase of last January when severe wioter weather and the na-tionwide coalminers strike impeded earnings.

Total personal iocome last month stood at $1.74 trillion, an increase of of $8.3 billion over August. Wages and salaries increased 0.4 percent, or $4.3 billion, in September, compared with 0.2 percent, or $1.9 billion, in August, the department said. Commodity-producing industries' payrolls increased $1.7 billion, following a $100-million decline in August.

The department also reported that construction of homes and apartments rose to an annual rate of 2.07 million units last month — 4 percent above the August level. was the seventh consecutive month that new starts bave been above the 2-million mark, a level that economists consider to be

They are put up for sale in Onassis: "I could have auctioned off [her] undies for enough money to retire for life." Which is what Kirty Kelley seems to be up to with — and increasingly malevolent—curiosity about our former limited. Analyzing the why of this phenomenon is beyond the scope of a mere amateur, but it clearly makes Jacqueline Onassis one of the hottest blue chips in publishing Perhaps I should not be outraged that writers and publishers cash is with offerings like this. Bot I am Kitty Kelley has dedicated this book to her parents. Frankly, I wouldn't want mine to catch me her book. It's a literary garage sale of Jackie's unmentionables — her undies, her money, her sex life, her psyche - not to mention some hot numbers about her mother, father and two husbands. There is apparently nothing — right down to "ex-tra perspiration shields" and "pad-ded bras" — that Miss Kelley con-siders too intimate for this "truly intimate biography."

I hate to pass along the raw files ranging from the prurient to the preposterous — which lace this book, but a couple of the tamest ones (unproven here) will give you the idea. Take the paragraph in which she says that a close relative of Mrs. Onassis "was rumored to be bisexual, and to have once enjoyed an intimate relationship with Cole Porter." Or the assertion, which she stributes to "a friend" that over the years Jackie has received "envelopes of cash cootaining hundreds of dollars" from a very rich woman "mentor" in the Virginia hunt country. There are enough nasty stories — some with the tartler's name attached — about Mrs. Onassis' friends and relations to fill a medium-sized trash compactor. If that doesn't satisfy your let's-get-Jackie thirst, Miss Kelley has made her out to be the crankiest lady since Charles Schulz invented Lucy. In a single paragraph she says: "Jackie was irritated. [she] resented. was exasperated. disgusted.

worn out: soapping.
[and]complaining."

The book is appropriately illustrated with Ron Galelia's pictures. He's the New York photographer Mrs. Onassis sued for Invasion of privacy in 1972, even though, according to Kitty Kelley, "all of cording to Kitty Kelley, "all of Galella's 4,000 photographs showed her looking exquisitely beautiful. He. always took his pictures in a bright light to camouflage her grey teeth and soften the wrinkles around her eyes." (Thanks, Ron.)

Nuggets and Shadge

You'd have to be clairvoyant to find out where some of the material in this book originates. Anonymous quotes, attributed quotes, stuff ve've read before and what must be Miss Kelley's own ideas swirl around without so much as a footnote to filter the ouggets from the sludge. Separating fact from fiction ade before he died in 1957. By sludge. Separating fact from fiction

For all I know, some of it may be true. The question is: Who needs it? Kitty Kelley says her subject is a "public figure." The plain facts are: Jacqueline Onassis has never been elected to office; she is not a public

He does try to explain the publ-appeal of Jacquelioe Onassis an comes up with this sublime poss. bility: ft's because she is like Sea: lett O'Hara with "Onassis, he Rhett Builer." By Alan Truscot

Some foxy experts like to lie low in a competiove auction, hoping that the bidding by the opposition will tell them how far to bid. West tried these tactics on the diagrame deal but was outfoxed. South eoded up making a doubled slam after some tricky play.

The normal action for West, when his partner had overcalled in spades and South had hid hearts, was to raise spades to the game level, or perhaps make a cue-bid in hearts. Instead he stayed in the bushes and emerged with four spades after North-South had reached four hearts. His tactics helped South, who was shie to find out about his partner's heart support. A direct four-spade hid would have made it harder for North-South to judge how far to bid. South's final six-heart bid was based oo the knowledge that there was a fit in both red suits. It was doubly right, because East-West would have made five spades easily and there was some play for six hearts. West doubled confidently, thinking that his minor-suit strength plus the defensive values suggested by his partner's overcall would suffice, but events proved him wrong.

The declarer won the opening spade lead in dummy with the ace and led a club, wishing to find out as much as possible about the distributioo before making the crucial decision about the diamond suit. West won and played a second spade which was ruffed in the elosed hand. Now declarer used two trump entries to ruff two more clubs, and reviewed the situation.

It was now a certainty that West held at least three diamonds, since he was void in hearts and could oot have more than 10 hlack cards. The routine play of a diamond to the jack, in the hope of finding a doubleton king on the left, was then fore doomed. The best chance we to find a singletoo or doubletoo te with East, so South led the di mood queen forcing West to cov with the king. The fall of the egl was interesting to declarer, hul-was not clear that this was a single ton. He took two more trump trickand reached this ending:

South led his last trump, which hrought the club ace from West. He threw the last club from dumm and judged correctly at the 12th trick by finessing. That was worth 1660 to North-South and 16 inter oational match poiots. In the re play East played six spades dou bled down one.

Dent and Doyle Star In 6th-Game Victory

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18 (AP) - Bucky Dent and Brian Doyle combined for six hits and five runs batted in and Reggie Jackson added a home run as the New York Yankees defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers, 7-2, here last night to win the World Series, four games to two.

Catfish Hunter scattered six hits through seven innings to pick up the victory. Rich Gossage replaced Hunter after Joe Ferguson's leadoff double in the eighth inning and beld the Dodgers in check on one hit the rest

The Yankees captured their second consecutive World Series after losing the first two games in Los Angeles. They became the first team in World Series history to win in six games after losing the opening two.

The victory in the 75th anniversary World Series capped one of the great comebacks in baseball history. The Yankees had to come from 14 games behind on July 19 to catch Boston in the American League's East Division. They woo a division playoff in Fenway Park, then eliminated Kansas City for the third straight year in the playoffs to qualify for the

This Series started in reverse for New York as the Yankees dropped the first two games in California before they returned home and began win-

The Dodgers, stung by three straight losses in New York, had vowed they would recover at home. And, very hriefly, it looked as if they might. Davey Lopes opened the game by sending Hunter's third pitch into the left-field bleachers, giving Los Angeles a quick lead as the Dodger Stadium crowd of 55,985 roared.

But the lead lasted only until the Yankees came to bat in the second inning. With one out, Graig Nentles singled. Jim Spencer then walked, bringing up Doyle, the rookie second baseman pressed into playoff and World Series action because of injury to Willie Randolph.

The 23-year-old infielder, who spent most of the season in the minors, responded with the first extra-base hit of his major league career — doubling over the head of left fielder Dusty Baker on a 1-2 pitch.

That scored Nettles and sent Spencer to third. Then Dent singled up the middle to score two more runs. The Yankees were in front, 3-1. Don Sutton, the Dodgers' starter and a veteran right-hander, escaped

Los Angeles shaved a run off the New York lead in the third when Ferguson, inserted into the lineup at catcher to add some offensive punch, opened with a double off Lou Piniella's glove as the right fielder crashed

On the Ropes

Ferguson moved to third on a sacrifice by Vie Davalillo - also starting his first game of the Series - and came home when Lopes bounced a single up the middle. Lopes stole second and, when Bill Russell walked, the Dodgers had Hunter on the ropes.

Reggie Smith hit a grounder that seemed as if it might get through the infield, but Doyle backhanded the ball nicely and flipped to Dent, starting an inning-ending double play.

With that boost, Hunter took over in the middle innings, retiring 11 straight Dodgers. The game stayed 3-2 until the sixth, when the Yankees slap hitters took over again. Piniella led off with a single, but Sutton got Nettles on a fly ball and struck out Spencer. The last strike was a wild pitch, moving Piniella to Doyle drilled his third hit, scoring Piniella, then took second on the pearances overall, for a .438 batting play at the plate. It was his fifth successive hit. Right-hander Bob Welch relieved Sutton, and Dent greeted him with a soft single to center for his third hit of the game, his fifth straight in the Series, and another run batted in.

Long Home Run

That made it 5-2, and in the seventh, the Yankees added some insurance on the strength of one of Jackson's longer home runs. Roy White opened with a walk and after Thurman Munson struck out, Jackson faced the 21-year-old rookie who struck him out so that matically to end the second game of the Series - the last one the Dodgers won.

With the fans howling at the Yankees' designated hitter, Jackson got even. He belted the second pitch toward the Yankee bullpen in right field. The fence in that sector is marked 360 feet, and Jackson's homer sailed at least 100 feet beyond that.

The blow was so stunning that it silenced the crowd and, after circling the bases, Jackson tipped his hat as be reached the New York dugout. His ninth career home run in the Series made him No. 6 on the all-time list behind Mickey Mantle, Babe Ruth, Yogi Berra, Duke Snider and Lou

That made it 7-2, but when the Dodgers came to bat in the eighth and Ferguson opened with a double, Boh Lemon, the New York manager, wasted no time in signalling for Gossage - the reliever who led the league with 26 saves during the regular season. Gossage surrendered an infield single to Davalillo, giving Los Angeles

But then he struck out Lopes and Russell grounded to Nettles, who started an inning-ending double play that finished the Dodgers. "I knew I didn't have anything." he said. "I just did what I had to

The Rising Cost Of Escorting Spies

WASHINGTON — As the conbeen giving a lot of time and ing the Soviet defector Arkady Shevchenko and his paramour Judy

much is agreed

He niet, or was given as a reward. Miss Chavez. who worked for an "escort" service in Washington. He paid Miss Chavez $500 a night for her friendship, and spent betweeo $35,000 and $40,000 on her for gifts and a trip to the Virgin Islands. He was known in the CIA as "the spy who was never cold."

Buchwald

The facts in dispute are whether Mr. Shevchenko paid for Miss Chavez services out of his own pocket or whether they were paid for hy the CIA to keep him happy and talking. If Arkady spent his own money, he was taken advantage of for being a foreigner. But if the CIA paid for the undercover operation, then the taxpayers have a right to ask some questions.

Why on earth was the ClA paying Miss Chavez $500 a night wheo the going rate in the intelligence husiness for this sort of thiog is

If Arkady was paying for it, why didn't someone in the FBI or CIA warn him that he was being overcharged for Miss Chavez' nightly

If the CIA is footing the hill, as Miss Chavez claims, it means there is a serious lack of cost control in the agency when it comes to pro-

No loyal American would take science of America. I have issue with the fact that a high-ranking Soviet official who wants to thought to recent events surround-ing the Soviet defector Arkady wants from the CIA in exchange for intelligence secrets.

But when you start paying outrageous prices for close encounters of have not been disclosed (we have to-this kind, you are not only contrib-uting (as President Carter said at his press conference) to inflation, but you are setting a precedent for other Soviet defectors, which the United States can ill afford.

> The next defector will also expect a $500-a-night female componion, and if she is paid less he will feel that the CIA is not treating him with the same respect they did Arkady. How many "escorts" our intelligence agency supply at these rates before it starts shortchanging our other spy opera-

Even if the CIA can afford it, other friendly intelligence organizations are furious about the publicity given to the Shevchenko-Chavez

"We've never paid our girls more than $50 a night," a French intelligence agent told me. This puts every Western intelligence agency on the spot. The CIA has made the price of sex so high, we may got be able to use it any more as the ultimate weapon."

An Israeli agent thought Arkady was a KGB plant. "What better way to break the CIA budget than to have a defector demand a woman with expensive tastes, a yen for beautiful cars and a desire to make love in beautiful resorts. We could have put up a spy satellite for what it cost the Americans to keep Arkady talking.

Because of all the publicity, the CIA must oow give Shevchenko a new cover and move him to a safer city than Washington.
I suggest Cleveland, It is not ooly

'Boy Illustrator'

In 1911, at age 17, Rockwell was working on several young people's magazines, and bad already been dubbed the "boy illustrator.

Five years later, the Saturday Evening Post accepted two of his sketches for magazine covers, the seeds of a fame that has lasted more than 50 years.

Rockwell's favorite subjects were children and animals. He depicted the awkwardnesses of youth, from the first black eye to the first visit to a dentist, and sucb special but universal moments as a young soldier returning from war, or an old woman and young boy saying grace at a railway station restau-

He avoided the ugly side of life, its agonies and sadnesses, the sick, mentally ill or deformed. As he said in his hiography, written by his son in 1960: I paint life as I would like it to be."

To many art critics. Rockwell's idealizing may have kept him from being considered a great artist. But that simply did not matter to millions of Americans, and evidence of their cootioued eothusiasm is visible here every day.

Just around the corner from his house, a block away on Main Street, crowds of people queue up daily, rain or shice, to tour the Corner House museum that contains many of Rockwell's

In 1968, when the museum opened in a lovely old house, there were fewer than 5,000 visitors. Today, without any adver-tising, between 60,000 and 70,000 people visit annually. The seveo guides average 25 tours a day. The museum has about 150 paintings and drawiogs, most of which Rockwell has placed in trust for it.

Except for such "old faith-fuls" as Rockwell's Four Freedoms, the paintings are rotated twice a year, with the undis-played works locked in a vault. People are so amazed that behiod all of these simple Saturday Evening Post covers there is a beautiful oil painting," says Margaret Batty, the museum's assistant director. The Rockwell way of remembering of other, less complex lifestyles has even found favor in the White House: In the corridor running from the press offices to Jimmy Carter's Oval Office, there is an exhibit of drawings tbat Rockwell did during a visit when Franklin D. Roosevelt was in office. "I think there is a new interest, and it's not all nostalgia by any means," says Rockwell's wife, Molly. "It's vey easy to push him off as entertainment, But you have to see and know him. He's very complex." Others, including Corner House Director David Wood, believe Rockwell's talent at last is getting substantial recognition from the art world.

But not everyone sees the surge of interest in Rockwell the same way.

"I'm sure he's still popular, but he's not a force in the art world," says a curator for the National Portrait Gallery in Washington, D.C. "He's dated, like Bob Hope." (The gallery has only one Rockwell, his portrait of former President Richard Nixon.)

For his part, Rockwell has been content to call himself an illustrator - one who could tell an intricate story in a single picture, and make a magazine cover more than a one-line joke.

"For him, his profession was his passion," Mrs. Rockwell says. Then a bit wistfully, she adds. "But I think he always wanted to be recognized by the fine arts world."

Whatever art history's verdict on Rockwell, the contemporane ous impact of his work was enorous impact of his work was enormous. During World War II, for example, he spent 10 months painting the Four Freedoms (of Speech and Worship and from Want and Fear). The originals were sent oo a 16-city tour, they were seen by 1.4 million people and raised $133 million in war honds

Models

Many of the faces in those paintings, as in most of Rockwell's works, were family, friends and townsfolk.

lo Freedom from Want, the woman serving a Thanksgiving turkey was the family cook. (It was also one of the few times, Rockwell later recalled, that one of the models was eaten.)

A stickler for detail, he once spent an entire afternoon chasing a dog he wanted for a painting. One dogcatcher thought he was crazy, and an old lady accused him of baving a "perverse taste for dog meat," he said in his biography.

Another time, a prominent society matron was pleased to be a model for Rockwell. She never spoke to him again because he failed to tell ber she would appear as an obese cook.

Police Chief Obenheim (who gained fame when be appeared as himself in the movie "Alice's Restaurant," which was filmed in Stockbridge) has been a model several times.
